Duty on Imported Paper.

Harper Brothers vs. H. A. Smythe.—This was an action to recover an alleged excess of duty imposed upon an importation of paper, and paid by the plaintiffs under protest. The facts as they appeared in evidence are as follows:—The plaintiffs imported a quantity of paper from Eugland in 1866, intended for their magazine, on which the Collector charged duty at the rate of 25 per cent, as imposed by the set of March, 1863, on sized paper. Plaintiffs contended that the paper in question was not sized within the meaning, or sufficiently sized to bring it within its provisions, and as unsized paper was only liable to a tax of 20 per cent. They also sought to establish the fact that previous from their ming the form the court of the speaks in the first person; some by the cashier, in one of which he asks payment to the bank—are all circumstances for your consideration bearing upon the question whether this dealing was with the bank. You will receive all the evidence and say how that was. If you decide that it was not then, as I before said, your verdict will be for the defendant; if you think the transaction was one entered into by the bank through the President, then other questions will arise, upon the decision of which the verdict will depend. The loan of gold was made without any time being designated for its return. The law in such cases makes it payable on demand, and until the defendants by demand have put the plaintif in default, the plaintif would have the right to make a tender of the gold and ask a return of the security, The question then arises here, was any demand made on behalf of the defendants? It was claimed that a demand was ing made default the gold was bought in on the 27th september. 1864, and that the plaintiff having made default the gold was bought in on the 28th inst. at $10.002.25. Now although this demand and this purchase were in the name of Mr. Fish, yet it will be for you to say, if you find the ioan was made by the bank, whether this demand and the surchase were in the name of Mr. Fish; we name of any importance. If they were on the bank whether their being in Mr. Fish's name. If they were, or the bank, which it will be for you to say, upon a review of the whole transaction, they would be just as serviceable to it as if made in the name of the plaintiff that the notion to pay, served on demand, on the 58th of September. 1864, was waived. No question has been raised as to whether the demand was good at all, not having been personally made; but it is claimed by the plaintiff that the notion to pay, served on demand, on the 58th of September. 1864, was waived. No question has been raised as to whether the demand was question of fact for your consideration. If what Mr. Poppe was ill the latter said they would wa

The defendants, in their answer, admit the fact of the collision, but plead, in the usual legal phraseology, that the plaintiff was guilty of such negligence as led to the occurrence complained of. The case had not concluded at the riving of the court.
